"I'll Give 'Em All I've Got," Says the Mountsman

DANNING IS TO CATCH

Giants Can Hear the Uproar From the Adjoining Club-House

By Pat Robinson
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(INS)—It's Hubbell or home for the Giants today. Yanks are so confident of four straight that some of 'em make train reservations . . . for tonight . . .

Hubbell takes as much care dressing and combing his hair as he does pitching to Di Maggio with the bases full . . . he isn't sure whether he can come back with all his stuff . . . after only two days rest . . . but says he has done so before . . . "Anyhow, I'll give 'em all I've got," he adds . . .

Bill Terry says Danning will catch . . . and intimates he may make more changes . . . he's surprised when he learns Joe McCarthy is going to pitch Bump Hadley . . . because, like everybody else, he expected to see Gomez again . . .

"I don't mind getting licked," said Memphis Bill, "but I sure hate to look so bad . . ."

Hal Schumacher is cussing like a trooper . . . not because he was derided by the Yanks . . . but because the trainer is treating a large boil just below his knee . . .

Dick Bartell is hopping mad . . . the scrappy little shortstop declares Empire Basil's judgment on balls and strikes was terrible . . . "Schumacher wasn't wild," he says, "the ump's just wouldn't call those on the corners . . ."

Meanwhile, the Giants can hear the uproar of the Yanks from the adjoining clubhouse room . . . "One to go," the Yanks are yelling . . .

Monte Pearson is explaining to Charley Ruffing what happened to him in the ninth . . . "I wasn't tired, Charley, not a bit . . . but my arm just stiffened up on me in the cold and I lost control . . ."

U. S. and World Affairs Discussed by Dr. Melchior

The Japanese question occupied a portion of the time allotted to Dr. D. Montfort Melchior, as he addressed members of the Travel Club, yesterday afternoon, in the local club's home.

Dr. Melchior, head of high school education at Girard College, Philadelphia, explained the nine-power treaty which grants assurance of territorial integrity of China. "The only thing that will bring Japan to her knees," according to the speaker, "will be an economic boycott, but this is only possible if all nations enter into such."

The present condition of affairs in the United States was given consideration, with the possibility of an extra session of Congress being mentioned. A full discussion of the wage and hour bill proved very enlightening to the gathering.

The speaker was presented to the audience by Miss Frances H. Landreth, who had charge of the afternoon program.

Mrs. Russell DeLong and Mrs. William H. Arensmeyer made reports of the Herald-Tribune Forum, held in New York recently.

Hostesses on this occasion were Mrs. Thomas Scott and Mrs. Emil Metzger.

SCOUTING EMPHASIZES HELPFULNESS, HE SAYS

Judge Calvin S. Boyer Addresses Meeting of Committee In His Offices

SPECIALLY DESIGNATED

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 9.—"Scouting is emphasizing the good turn idea of helpfulness to others," said Judge Calvin S. Boyer, chairman of the Bucks County Scouting Council civic service committee. At the meeting of the committee in his office last evening he continued his remarks by saying, "We have been and are going to continue an aggressive program among our Cubs, Scouts, Seascouts, and leaders, to strengthen their interest in work for others. Our responsibilities are to our neighbors, and to our domestic and wild life."

It was suggested by Neighborhood Commissioner William Wainman, of Croydon, to use a special designation for scouts and leaders when they are on traffic duty. The following insignia will be worn in addition to the official uniform: white safety belt, white hat-band, white gloves, whistle with white cord, and when on crowd duty, the Scout is to carry a six-foot white staff.

Scoutmaster Chester A. Foulke, Quakertown, suggested that when requests are received for parade and traffic service they be restricted to the district in which the activity takes place. "Humane projects" from the suggestion of Assistant Cubmaster John Adams, Riegelsville, will be the presentation of the Civic Service committee at the annual meeting of the Bucks County Council. Scoutmaster Harry Behm, Eddington, is making bird feed sketches to be used for mimeograph stencils to be sent to all leaders in preparation for the coming winter "good turn to birds."

The Bucks County Humane Club, through the secretary, Mrs. Fannie R. Ervin, has made arrangements with Scout Executive William F. Livermore for the distribution of literature pertaining to domestic and wild animals. Demonstrations are being prepared on the subjects of "the care of dogs," "the care of cats," "pet protection," "proper trapping," and "the construction of bird feeds." If there is a severe winter, arrangements are being made for the feeding of wild animals.

JITTERY WORLD TENSELY FOLLOWED FAST-BREAKING NEWS EVENTS HAPPENING DURING SEPTEMBER

By International News Service

With unbridled warfare raging in the Far East, with Spain deep in the throes of her civil war, and with war threats hanging ominously over the entire European continent, a jittery world tensely followed September's fast-breaking news events.

Foremost story of the month centered about the activities of a mysterious "pirate" submarine in the Mediterranean. With almost 20 piratical attacks on shipping in the Mediterranean, vessels of British and French fleets, scoured the sea in search of the offending under-water death-dealing craft.

The patrol of the sea was decided upon following an emergency international meeting and the signing of the "Accord of Nyon."

As the powers met to discuss the Mediterranean situation, Italy and Russia almost came to blows when the Soviet government bluntly made the accusation that Italy was responsible for the submarine depredations. The Russian charges were accompanied by demands for damages for the sinking of two Soviet steamers.

Premier Mussolini's foreign minister, Count Ciano, immediately denied the charges, and upon the basis of the Russian accusations, Italy and her fascist ally, Germany, refused to attend the nine-power conference at Nyon, Switzerland. However, shortly after the Nyon pact was signed, Italy expressed a desire to participate in the patrol on a "parity" basis. England,

REVEAL UNIQUE PAY GIVEN IN DEED FOR A PARCEL OF LAND

Arrowhead and Indian Head Nickel Given As The Consideration

FOR MONUMENT SITE

Deed Executed On September 5th, 1936, is Now Being Recorded Here

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 9.—Dr. LeRoy A. Hillegass, Recorder of Deeds, today revealed a very unique deed filed in his office giving the consideration for a parcel of land as an arrowhead and an Indian head nickel.

Francis C. Pyle and his wife, Alice T. Pyle, of Middletown township, the grantors, sold to the Doane Family Association of America, Inc., a corporation of the State of New Jersey, a parcel of land on which is now situated a monument, for the consideration of one Indian arrowhead found in Newtown township, accepted as a symbol of the original deed given by the Indians to William Penn for a section of land of which the lot is a part, and one five cent piece having thereon the profile of an Indian bearing the date 1936.

The deed, which was executed on September 5, 1936, is now being recorded here.

According to history, Daniel Doan, formerly of Eastham, Plymouth colony, emigrated to what is now called Newtown township in 1695.

He settled along the Neshaminy creek, near Newtown, and purchased 28 acres of land from James Yates, Sr., December 11, 1713, twenty-two acres more of land were added to the original purchase.

The Pyle grantors permitted the grantee to erect a monument, dedicated to the original member of the Doane family on a plot of land along the Newtown-Langhorne highway, just north of the George School grounds.

The plot is a parcel of land about ten by 12 feet and bears a handsome monument, bearing a tablet, on which are recited the events of the history of Daniel Doan.

"I have no doubt that this is one of the strangest considerations for land ever recorded in the office," said Recorder of Deeds Hillegass.

History also shows that members of the Cooper, Twining and Doan families, who first settled in the Cape Cod section, including Eastham and Orleans "on the cape" travelled south until they reached Bucks county, where they purchased land and became wealthy land owners.

Motorist To Pay Fine; Gets Suspended Sentence

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 9.—Harold L. Coffman, 3322 Englewood street, a Philadelphia paper salesman, who was convicted of a charge of involuntary manslaughter by a Bucks county jury in September, was sentenced by President Judge Hiram H. Keller to pay a fine of $500 and a prison sentence of one to three years was suspended on condition that he pay the fine and costs of prosecution immediately.

Coffman, who operated a car on the Allentown-Quakertown highway, near Brush Meadow, May 6, when it collided with another car driven by David Popalardo and injured Mrs. Ida Barata, of Freeland, who died in the Quakertown Community Hospital on Memorial Day from injuries received, was told by President Judge Keller to surrender his license immediately and under no circumstance operate a car, and not make application for an operator's license within one year.

The defendant, who figured in a bitterly contested trial, was placed on probation for three years.

The woman passenger, who did not take the stand during the trial, was badly disfigured as the result of injuries.

Counsel for the defendant, Robert H. Grim, who withdrew a motion for a new trial, pleaded with the Court not to impose a prison sentence.

The defendant's son will operate the car so that he may carry on his business as a paper salesman.

The first libel was nine-to-three in favor of conviction.

Predicts Many Sales Of Oldsmobiles Here

Returning from Lansing, Mich., where he attended the national sales convention of Oldsmobile, William Warner, of the Enterprise Garage, predicted a record breaking sales year in Bristol for the new 1938 Oldsmobile Sixes and Eights which he saw on display for the first time at the Oldsmobile factory.

"After looking at the models Oldsmobile is presenting for the coming year I am convinced that there will be a greater swing to Oldsmobile in 1938 than ever before," William Warner said.

Special trains carried the delegates to the Oldsmobile factory at Lansing. There the sleeping cars were switched on sidings, so that delegates could attend meetings in Oldsmobile's huge plant auditorium.

In addition to viewing the new 1938 model Oldsmobiles, those attending heard discussions of Oldsmobile's sales plans for the coming year as presented by D. E. Ralston, Oldsmobile general sales manager. They also were addressed by C. L. McCuen, Oldsmobile general manager; G. R. Browder, assistant general sales manager in charge of retail sales, and V. C. Havens, advertising manager.

An Unsuccessful Interview

By Greta Drumm

I was asked to get an interview with a famous lady living quietly within our midst.

With the newspapers full of the Chinese situation; with the pros and cons thereof dining in our ears half the day over the radio; with lesser lights expressing their views on the subject in magazines and periodicals; with the library shelves everywhere emptied of any books on China and the Chinese by eager readers; with the whole world genuinely interested and curious regarding the great, ancient land and its teeming people, our editor thought surely the one woman in our midst who knew and really understood the background of the present undeclared but bloody warfare would be Pearl Buck, author of "The Good Earth," "The Exile," "The Mother." Painter of never to be forgotten word pictures of lives, white and yellow, young and old, good and just human, lived under the shadow of the Great Wall of China.

Having tried vainly to make an appointment, off we went one beautiful Fall morning. We were not destined to see the writer nor to gather her views, though we hope someday to do so. By all editorial and reportorial standards our trip was a total "flop," but somehow it did not seem so at all.

Never was air so clean and clear and sparkling. Never were hills so radiant, golden and red and living, vital brown. Never did human beings seem so small, the hills and valleys and winding roads so everlasting and so good.

"The Good Earth," indeed. It lay spread before us, mile on mile, like a great rolling carpet stretching on and on to the very footstool of the Lord.

Doylestown, our County seat, lay drowsing in that great bowl of hills, busy, yet unburied. Prosperous, yet unostentatious. Modern, yet unashamed, proud indeed, of the footprints left by her fathers.

Misdirected, we went by devious and never to be forgotten ways to New Galena. Was it a real village, sleeping there in the noonday sun? I hardly know myself. That was the name on the hotel signpost, but it seemed quite too beautiful for the old, bustling world in which we live.

Over long hills we rode, down country hillside a flame with Autumn glory. We made inquiries at isolated, beautifully kept farm-homes. White fences gleamed. Hens cackled. The bark of a watchdog echoed on and on over the valleys and downs. A blue sky smiled on us, far, far horizons shimmered in the sun, and closing my eyes I thought surely I must be dreaming.

Then back by shorter route to Doylestown, and correct directions. Then Dublin, and at last the gateway to Pearl Buck's home.

Hopeful and determined, but not wanting to too flagrantly defy the "Private" signs in the driveway, I walked alone up the long approach to the home of America's famous novelist.

Bloodred sumac leaves nodded over the pathway. Yellow goldenrod swayed in the almost imperceptible breeze—as if an unseen, living presence breathed nearby. Sudden gleams of purple Michaelmas daisy added variety and depth to the picture. A woodpecker worked diligently somewhere nearby, and a small bird sang his heart out far up in the blue haze of the sky.

There was the house, quiet and beautiful and still. How proud I felt—this woman who has seen so many lands, so much beauty, so much splendor of scenery—mountains and lakes and rolling oceans—has taken as her home this grey stone house built in Pennsylvania many, many years ago, by quiet, practical, loving hands long gone. She has seen the dignity of the great barn, built as the shelter for the dumb beasts who serve man so faithfully. She has glorified and loved the little stone house that stands so shy in the shadow of its grey old mother. She has put swings, slides, a playwagon, a bathing pool, to brighten the quiet old yard and bind her children's hearts to this lovely home.

She lives here in these old, dim rooms, loving every inch of them, binding herself to every American tradition, seeping herself in the beauty of this place of our forefathers, but she has not forgotten the land where "The Exile" lived. Here over the comfortable porch hangs a great Chinese bell, and as I look at it the glory of our hills fades and for an instant I see an American mother holding a little girl, who was never to see America, up to a small window to see and hear the temple bell ringing in far off China.

But no one was home, only a great, yellow cat. I took him in my arms, "Puss, or is it Chang, what does your mistress think of the present Chinese situation?"

Puss regarded me with oblique and placid eyes. Her fur was soft and sweet. Her feet great, velvet pads. Her purr part of the picture of peace and content I gathered from this place. A car drove past and her ears pricked delicately. Was she quietly waiting, listening, for the woman whom the world knows as a great writer—waiting quite unconcerned as to the Chinese or any other situation, to hear her voice and drink the cream she undoubtedly gives him, and dream again in the sun on the quiet, still porch?

So I left, feeling that I had not seen Pearl Buck, but had surely met her. The bank of lovely flowers framing the back of the grounds receded as I returned to my waiting companion in the car. Puss stretched herself in a warm spot beneath the old bell, as much as to say "That is that." The woodpecker stopped his drumming to listen to us depart, and the long hills rolled ahead of us again, homeward bound.

GREEN PALACE BOWLERS WIN OUT OVER ELKS

The Green Palace bowlers won three points from Elks this week, the Elks winning the first game of the match. Wichser, Jr., rolled high three games for the Palace with his 580. The old veteran of the team, "Pop" Amisson, inserted his heart breaking score of 116 which is the lowest the grand old man remembers turning in since he first began rolling the sphere down the wooden ways some forty years ago. This was a great inspiration for the new beginners, who now feel as good as the best man on the alleys. But then he made the comeback with a nice 234, the high single of the night.

In the other matches Moffo's turned in a victory of 3 points to one over O'Boyle's, Boyd turning in three nice games for a total of 585.

Burlington beat Rohm & Haas by the same margin with Shumard showing the way with 593 total, the high three games for the league this week.

ST. ANN'S TO OPEN SEASON ON HOME FIELD TOMORROW

Tomorrow afternoon on St. Ann's field, Garden street and Jefferson avenue, the independent gridiron season will open for Bristol when the St. Ann's club clashes with the Morrisville Tigers. Game is scheduled to begin at 2:30 o'clock sharp.

The "Saints" are entering the fray confident of victory despite the two set-backs they have received at the hands of the Burlington and Disston teams. Several weak spots on the club have been filled, especially the kicking, which has been ragged, although Tosti did a fine job last week.

Coach "Bill" Dougherty acquired a new player during the week in "Billy" McCahan who will play alongside of "Henny" Kornstedt at one of the end posts. McCahan will also aid in the kicking, having punted for an average of forty yards last season.

The Morrisville team will start as follows: Ends, Mattis and Devin; tackles, Gavin and Simeon; guards, Kiernan and Fisher; center, Bresley; backs, Tettermer, Walsh, Kleinfelder and Tallone. The "Saints" will probably use the following in the starting line-up: Conli and McCahan; tackles, Kornstedt and Gullatto; guards, Brown and Profy; center, Mignoni; quarterback, Tosti; halfbacks, Bono and Pico; fullback, Orazi.

A large crowd is expected to witness the Purple and Gold pry off the lid of its home season. Next week, the "Saints" will play Doylestown on the latter's field.

Shanghai, Oct. 9.—Possibility of impositions of sanctions against Japan for her invasion of China aroused every expert authority of the Western powers here today, to define more carefully than ever before his estimate of Japan's fighting ability against a first-class power or combination of powers.

A survey of this expert opinion by International News Service revealed surprising unanimity of judgment against the quality of the Imperial combat forces.

LANGHORNE SCORES WIN OVER OPPONENTS

LANGHORNE, Oct. 9.—A lone touchdown in the second period netted Coach Charles Beck's Langhorne Redskins a 6-0 victory over a big and strong New Jersey School for the Deaf here yesterday afternoon.

The touchdown was scored in a sensational manner, it coming as a result of a sensational 45 yard pass from Bill McCahan to Chuck Klein, Langhorne's famous pass combination and ace backfield stars. Klein caught the flying pigskin standing in the end zone of the visitors and this play of course was the outstanding feature of a well played and evenly matched ball game.

In the early minutes of the opening period, Langhorne drove down deep into the visitors' territory, coming within the ten yard marker. The drive originated on the Langhorne 30 yard line and carried them down to the Mutes' 10 yard stripe. The brunt of the attack was laid upon the Redskins' pair of ace backs, Klein and McCahan. Included in the drive was two net gains of 20 yards each on two plays, one a pass, McCahan to Klein; and the other a 20 yard run by McCahan. The rest of the yardage was gained through the line and shorter passes. However, when Langhorne reached the 10 yard line, Tom Carney fumbled and the Deaf boys took advantage of the break to escape trouble for they recovered at that point and then proceeded to kick out of danger.

However, the home team was knocking at the visitors' door again shortly as a result of a 60 yard kick by McCahan which went out on Burbank's three yard line. The Mutes ran it to the ten and fumbled there where Langhorne recovered. But this time the New Jersey lads held on down and thus stopped another threat by the Indians. Langhorne failed to gain much ground on their two running plays, and failed to make connections on as many aerial tosses.

After the New Jersey School for the Deaf kicked out of danger, McCahan tossed the winning touchdown to Klein in the visitors' end zone for the only score of the day. The try for the extra point failed when the Deaf team's line blocked the attempted conversion.

Rose Bowlers Face Nemesis

Duquesne gridders, who beat Pittsburgh University Rose Bowlers last year, better watch for an avalanche this year with Marshall Goldberg, marvelous back with a year's experience, and Frank Patrick, a plunger, operating behind a rugged agile line.
